Richard A. Hibey Biographical Summary

Dick Hibey was born in Utica, New York in 1941 to first generation Lebanese immigrants (Delia and Anthony). In high school, Dick won multiple New York state elocution contests, which awarded scholarship money that effectively allowed him to enroll at LeMoyne College, a Jesuit college located in Syracuse, NY. Dick graduated from LeMoyne in 1962 with a Bachelor's Degree in Political Science, and eventually served on its Board of Trustees.

Dick enrolled in the Georgetown University Law Center in 1962, graduating with his Juris Doctorate in 1965. At the urging of law school dean Ken Pye, the E. Barrett Prettyman Fellowship Program accepted Dick into its post-graduate program, which provided (and continues to provide) legal representation to adults and adolescents accused of crimes who otherwise might be unable to retain first-rate counsel. Dick received his Master of Laws in 1966 and thereafter joined the Legal Aid Agency for the District of Columbia as a public defender. In 1968, Dick joined the United States Attorney's Office in Washington, D.C. and served as an Assistant United States Attorney for the next three years. In 1971, he joined Surrey Karasik & Morse for approximately ten years, after which he and others formed their own law firm, Anderson, Hibey, Nauheim and Blair. In 1995, Dick became a partner at Winston & Strawn, where he continued his trial practice until 2002. That year, he joined Miller & Chevalier and remained at the firm until his retirement.

Comfortable with speaking publicly, meticulous in preparation, and competitive in nature, Dick spent most of his more than 50-year career in courtrooms throughout the United States and the world. He represented indigent defendants as an attorney at Legal Aid, the United States as an Assistant United States Attorney, and high-profile individuals and companies as a law firm partner in private practice. The variety of matters Dick tried before a jury is staggering.

More than 120 times Dick presented cases to juries in matters ranging from murder to public corruption to lying to Congress. Among many honors, Dick was elected to the prestigious American College of Trial Lawyers, was a recipient of the Distinguished Alumni Award from Georgetown University, and in June 2002 received an honorary degree from Barry University's Andreas School of Law in recognition of his efforts to gain accreditation for the law school. Dick passed away on February 19, 2024.
